Marianne Moore (1887-1972) once said that her writing could be called poetry only because there was no other name for it. Indeed her poems appear to be extremely compressed essays that happen to be printed in jagged line on the page. Her subjects were varied: animals, laborers, artists, and the craft of poetry. From her general reading came quotations that she found striking or insightful. She included these in her poem, scrupulously enclosed in quotation marks, and sometimes identified in footnotes. Of this practice, she wrote, "Why the many quotation marks?" I am asked... When a thing has been said so well that it could not be said better, why paraphrase it? Hence my writing is, if not a cabinet of fossils, a kind of collection of flies in amber," Close observation and concentration on detail are the methods of her poetry.
