英國文學試題

(限用答案本作答)

Transfer exam, Ming Chuan University Department of Applied English, 2006-7.

This is an essay exam. PLEASE READ THE INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY. Following these instructions are five topics. Select any two of the topics and write essays about what you have learned about them in literary works that you have read. Each essay should develop a main idea and be supported by detailed evidence from one or two literary works. The literature can be from any culture or language, but your essays must be completely in English. Write on the test booklets provided, not on the test form.

1. Give an example of a literary work that urges a break with tradition. What change does it encourage? Do you agree with the change? What is persuasive (or not) about the text?
2. We live in a world in which many people speak one language at home and a different language at school or at work. Describe how a literary work deals with this situation and explain what you think about this approach.
3. Romance, marriage and divorce have all changed a lot in the last century. What literary work best describes your attitude about one of these issues? Explain.
4. Sometimes we just think a piece of writing is beautiful. Tell about one piece of writing you find beautiful. What is beautiful about it?
5. How does literature enrich your life? Give specific examples.
